End-user information

According to the WEEE Directive 2002/96/EC, all waste electrical and electronic equipment (EEE) should be disposed of and collected separately and treated according to the best available and environmentally friendly techniques.

EEE contains hazardous substances to the (human) environment but also EEE is a valuable resource of new raw materials. Therefore it is important to collect WEEE separately from other waste.

Aspect Medical products are subject to the Directive and we therefore urge you to dispose of the equipment separately from 'normal' household waste and make sure that it is treated at an electronics recycler.
